

Dear NAAFA,

I have not finished the issue I received yesterday, but I need to comment while it is topical. On Page 11 Guest editorial #2, paragraph 3, the last sentence states,

“Is this what power and control does to officers when they find themselves responsible for billions of dollars of other people’s money?”

Substitute one word and it becomes,

“Is this what power and control does to politicians when they find themselves responsible for billions of dollars of other people’s money?”

The taxpayers are expected to bailout the politicians and the policyholders & agents are expected to bailout the officers.

It looks like officers are taking lessons from politicians. Abraham Lincoln said, “You can fool some of the people some of the time and all of the people some of the time, but you can’t fool all of the people all of the time.” George Bush is credited with saying, “You can fool some of the people all of the time and those are the ones you need to concentrate on!”

It would appear that officers have taken the position that they will get rid of the agents that they can only fool some of the time and concentrate on those agents that they can fool all of the time.
