

To NAAFA,

I'd like to share vision I keep having of the AFMIC board of directors. Opium, also know as O.P.M. (other people's money) does have an intoxicating effect. I think it becomes a game. How HIGH can you get? How far can you push the envelope?

I visualize corporate officers sitting around a table with a mirror top. They never look into the mirror! They are pushing the ashes of former agents around with a razor blade. The edges are covered with dried blood! They are forming letters that say things like agents, commissions, incentives, retirement, and honesty. A window opens and then the CEO enters the room and all of the ashes are swept up in a current of wind and are "OUT THE WINDOW"! As the camera pans the room we see that the wind has been created by the "fat cat" officers ,who still have cheeks full of air and Cheshire grins!

A Visionary!!
